Dog Training Styles Compared

In a world full of Cesar Millan-wannabes, and Animal Planet addicts, it's difficult to decide where to turn when it comes to training your furry friend. Everybody seems to be an expert these days, and every method from Cesar's Way to the police K9 training has its pros and cons. But how do you pick? How do you decide what's best for your family member?—because after all, that is what a dog is to many people. We choose the best schools for our children, and we want the best training for our dogs—and if that can be accompanied by the best price, and the best effect, even better. For starters, let's cover a few terms that I'll be using later on. As you read these terms and definitions, think of what TV trainers you've seen have used which training techniques (a trainer will often use more than one to get a desired result). Have you walked your dog today?

Daily walks are essential but it's important to keep it interesting, dogs need sense of adventure and purpose. Spice it up by taking a new path or hiding some toys or treats in some bushes and let them do the investigating! You can also use this time as a training session too, by simply asking them to sit at each stop sign and rewarding with a treat. Each day you can change the command to keep it new. These simple things will help to keep his focus on you and further the bond between you and your pup.

Canine ID tag laws

SC 47-5-60 states that all canines must at all times wear their current rabbi's tag on either a collar or harness.

Have you brushed your pup's teeth today?

If you haven't you might want to consider it. Cavities in dogs can be greatly reduced by brushing twice a week and chewing on bones, which reduces plaque and tartar build-up. 98% of dogs with bad breath have periodontal disease which is a result of plaque build-up.

Get out those rakes, Autumn is here!

But before you let your pup dive in, be mindful of those oak trees!

Oak leaves and acorns are a known cause of renal failure in dogs, watch for fallen oak leaves in water bowls and also that fallen acorn which always looks so tempting to your dog...

but don't be fooled these are not harmless.
